HIGHLIGHTS

- November U.S. sales at Ford Motor Company totaled 196,303 vehicles, representing a 6.9 percent decline
- As a result of a decline in daily rental sales due to order timing, Ford fleet sales were down 7.1 percent; daily rental was down 32.7 percent, while commercial sales were up 11.8 percent
- A stronger mix of Trucks and SUVs increased Ford's overall average transaction pricing, hitting a new record of $37,000 in November, a $1,600 increase over last year. This compares to a $780 increase for the overall industry, with average transaction prices of $33,400
- Ford F-Series has now recorded a record nine straight months topping 70,000 trucks sold, on sales of 72,102 pickups
- Overall Ford Expedition sales increased 7.9 percent last month with 4,264 SUVs sold. At retail, Expedition sales grew at a faster pace of 17.7 percent
- Lincoln Navigator sales rose on strong demand and tight inventory; 88 percent of retail sales were high series Reserve and Black Label Navigator models. Navigator posted gains of 27.3 percent overall
- Lincoln began selling its new Nautilus SUV last month; overall MKX and Nautilus sales were up 20.4 percent, with Nautilus representing approximately half of the retail mix

"F-Series marked a record nine straight months topping the 70,000 truck mark, a consistent performance by a high volume, high margin product unmatched in the industry. Sales of our all-new Expedition and Transit Connect continue to grow, as does our mix of trucks, SUVs and vans. This mix totaled 82 percent in November boosting our transaction pricing to a new record of $37,000 per vehicle."

– Mark LaNeve, Ford vice president, U.S. Marketing, Sales and Service

WINNING PORTFOLIO

Ford trucks

As evidenced by nine consecutive months topping sales of 70,000 trucks, high level Ford F-Series pickups remain in strong demand. F-Series continues to transact close to record level transaction prices of $47,000 per pickup - $1,800 higher than the segment average.

Ford SUVs

Sales of the all-new Ford Expedition were up 7.9 percent last month. High series Platinum and Limited Expedition models continue to drive sales, representing 60 percent of retail sales in November. As a result, average transaction pricing is up $7,700 over last year, at $61,500

Ford commercial vans

As the world's best-selling cargo van, Ford Transit sales are up 10.0 percent through November on 126,446 vans sold. Ford's all-new Transit Connect retail sales were up 17.2 percent in November, as retail customer demand grows.

Lincoln Navigator

Lincoln's all-new Navigator posts strong gains on tight inventory. Our highest series Black Label Navigator averaged just 14 days on dealer lots. Navigator continues to see strong growth in such key luxury markets as California and Florida, where retail sales this year are up 190 percent and 102 percent, respectively.

Lincoln Nautilus

New Lincoln Nautilus boosted retail sales to 27.3 percent. The Nautilus has been well received, as it is averaging just 9 days on dealer lots. Average transaction prices last month for Nautilus totaled $47,200 per SUV, with a strong 79 percent mix of high series Black Label and Reserve models being sold.
